

Learning Designers Needed

LINE is an award-winning learning and communications company which has been producing interactive solutions for 20 years. Our continued success means we're expanding our learning design team.

Creative thinking is at the heart of everything we do. At LINE we deliver creative client side learning and communications solutions for diverse range of clients.

The learning design team is growing in our Sheffield office. LINE learning designers are responsible for the scripting and strategic (rather than visual) design of learning materials. They develop content and solutions for a broad range of learning projects including; bespoke scenario-based e-learning programmes, rapidly developed training modules, workshop training, print and blended solutions.

In particular we would like to hear from you if you have demonstrable experience in any of the following areas:

- Experience in a Lead Learning/Instructional Design role delivering e-learning solutions to the Corporate or Government sectors.
- An understanding of the academic & applied principles behind the design of effective e-learning and blended learning solutions

Apply online @

<http://www.line.co.uk/careers/careers.htm>

Strictly no agencies

[continued]

- Clear understanding of client handling and the production / delivery of commercial solutions in the UK e-learning marketplace
- Understanding of accessibility, usability and technical issues associated with e-learning development.
- Understanding of the principles of good grammar, appropriate writing styles and presentation methods
- Clear and appropriate written and spoken communications
- Ability to take a brief, define training needs (TNA) and respond to sales requests for innovative propositions and strategies for clients during the sales phase
- Ability to clearly order and break down content appropriately for delivery as effective learning material
- Experience using authoring or Rapid Development tools would be highly advantageous.

Candidates must be eligible to live and work in the UK or EU.

LINE
learning & communications